HE PRAYED FOR INGERSOLL

MR. JOHNSTON SAYS HE WAS AN SHERED AND TELLS HOW. He Belleves that the Efforts of the Chris-

Ingersoll Is Not an Irreligious Man. One of Col. Robert G. Ingersoll's friends in New York says that his prayer for the Colonel was answered several years ago, and he spg-gested that the Christian Endeavorers who have wrestled in spirit for Ingersoll's conversion to their belief might profit by pendering his experience. He is Mr. J. H. Johnston. He proclaims himself a religious man, not in sympathy with some of Ingersoil's attacks on the churches, but not an orthodox Christian. He prays, he says, although not as the Endeavorers pray. He is so much an optimist that he believes the individual acts according to the light he possesses, and that the community and the nation do the best they know how.

"It occurred to me when I read of the prayers of the Endeavorers," said Mr. Johnston, "that perhaps they might be interested in knowing how my prayer for Col. Ingersoll was answered. I will tell you what my experience

'It was in July, 1888, while I was in Saratoga, that I received a telegram from Camden, N. J., saying:

Wait Whitman dying; can you not get-ingersoil to deliver the funeral oration? "I went to Col. Incersoll's room in the Grand Union Hotel, and in the presence of his wife and daughters stated my errand. Well, Mr. Johnston,' was his reply, 'I don't know-I don't know. I don't think I care to speak at Whitman's funeral. I have read "Leaves of Grass." I respect the man, but I do not think I care to make any address at his

'All right,' I said, "that's all right. I think I appreciate just how you feel in the matter, and I cannot urre you. But will you do me a favor?
"'Certainly, if I can. What is it?'

"'Certainly, if I can. What is it?"

"'Well, said I, 'you say you have read "Leaves of Grass," and I will venture a guess that you have in your library at home the same edition that I bought in 1860, and for twelve years it remained in my library a scaled book, glanced at in a curious way once in a while, but never understood and appreciated until in 1872 I opened it, and it was a revelation to me. And the favor I ask is that now, after the lapse of twenty-eight years, you will, when you get home—whether Whitman liws or dies—read this great beok again, with the added experience of twenty-eight years to light you."

"He cave me the promise, and I left him. Wait Whitman did not die, sait lived nearly four years lenger. four years longer.

"In July, 1800, a friend for whom Mr. Ingersoil was counsel went to Europs and left a request with me that I would remind Mr. Ingersoil of certain points in a lawsuitearly in August. I went to his office to do so, and after finishing the business in hand got up to leave, when he wild.

Don't be in a hurry. Sit down and let's see what we know.

"After twenty minutes' talk I said to him:
"Where do you keep your check book, Mr. Ingerroll?"
"In that drawer. But why do you ask?"
"Take it right out and all out a check for a handsome amount and send it to Walt Whithandsome anosate man.

"Does he need it? he asked.

"Of course he needs it; he is old, poor, and paralyzed; a few of us send him a regular sum every month, which pays for a nurse and keeps him in good shape; and the best of it is, the dear old man doesn't know that we're doing it.

or him."
"After a moment's thought Mr. ingersoll said:
"How would it do for me to give a secture for his benefit?"
"Will you do it? Lasked.

" 'Any time.'
" 'Any time.'
" 'Where.'
" 'Anywhere.'
" The result was that about two months later, in October, in the city of Philadelphia, with Walt Whitman on the platform to listen out, Robert G. Ingersoll delivered what I and many others G. Ingersoil delivered what I and many others believe was the greatest becure he ever delivered on any subject. 'Liberty in Literature' was the title of it, and he dissected and expounded 'Leaves of Grass' to the satisfaction of all present and every lover of Whitman wherever and whenever they read it. And I had the satisfaction of placing $869 in the Good Gray Poet's lap at a little dinner and talk at the hotel after the lecture.

"But I have got ahead of my story. How was my prayer answered? I had found 'Leaves of Grass' a great spiritual tonic. Whitman was the most religious man I had ever met, but he was not plous. He was the most devout man I had ever known, but he was not sanctimonious. This I had long known, and so when I asked Grass' a great spiritual tonic. Whitman was the most religious man I had ever met, but he was not sanctimonious. This I had long known, and so when I asked Mr. Ingersoli, in 1888, to re-read Wall's book. I had a hope that he might flud the same inspiration in it that I had; and his lecture made me feel that I was right.

"Mr. Ingersoli sent his private secretary over to Philadelphia three days before the lecture to prepare for it. Then he took over his wife, two daughters, and his son-in-law, and his office manager, paid all the railroad fares, hotelbills, and every expense, and refused to accept one cent from the gross amount of the lecture, but gave all the proceeds to Whitman. He had been in the war with Whitman. The one was a Colonel. The other was a nurse for thousands of sick and wounded. Union and rebel soldiers, and his life was shortened by his sacrifices, which left him a physical wreck when the Union was restored.

"My assurance of a conscious hereafter has been increased tenfold by Whitman, although no one has ever yet returned from the 'undiscovered country,' and the only real evidence we have that there is consciousness beyond the grave is the something within ourselves, in our greatest moments, a cosmic sense of our eternal average with the universe. Glimpses of this had been given me in my youth and in my early manhood. I had been a great reader of Scripture, found all the Scriptures full of promises or rest and peace, here and now, but when I found matters postponed until after death it did not satisfy me. If the Scripture promises were worth anything they should be worth it now. At last, in 1871, I became reconciled to the universe, and the moment that occurred everything took on a different aspect, and it was soon after this that I found in 'Leaves of Grass' the fertile announcer of my own new faith and trust.

"It was long after this that I first met Mr. Ingersoli, and my first impression of him was which seemed to bother him, it has always seemed to me that Roman Catholicism has been a pret abolished, obliterated, utterly overthrown the idea of heil, the bigbear of the childhood of man as well as of the race.

"With all this in my mind, is it any wonder that I desired that a prayer in me that Mr. Ingersoil should see things as I did, and find in Myhitman what I had found? And so his lecture was the steeping stone to his great oration at Whitman's funeral in March, 1892, and as I listened to it. I heard enough to make me think he had caught the drift of Whitman's thought, and my prayer was answered.

"And now as the Christian Endeaverers are praving for his conversion to their views of religion I have wondered if they have gone about it in the right way. Here is a man who is loved by everyone who knows him personally. I think I am safe in saying that every clerkyman who knows him likes him. They may not enjoy all his swear words, but they cannot help feeling that he is the embodiment of goodness. He has been a tearer down of old views, most of which deserved destruction. His manner of doing it has not always pleased me by any means, and I have had a hope that before he dies he may be a builder up of a new faith formen who are not atradit to think, the unwavering faith that Whitman had in the unseen but felt power that bervades the universe.

"And while they are praying for him let me give them my idea of what prayer is. A well-known novelist drops in on me frequently for a chair. One day has tyear he came to me and said. 'I would like to ask you a question.' Sitting down with a little table between us he leaned forward and said: 'Mr. Johnston, do you pray?' ('ertrainly,'I answered."

You pray?
"Certainly," I answered.
"Why, you astonish me!" he said.
"Why?"

"Why?"
"Well-I-I-thought you were an agnostic.
"Didn't you think I was an infidel? Come,
now, be honest.
"Yes, I did."
"Possibly you imagined I was an atheist?"
"No, I'll not go as far as that, but I don't understand you. What do you mean—regular.
marrow-bone prayer?"

understand you. What do you mean-regular, marrow-bone prayer?

"Not one table of it; but I'll tell you what I mean. Suppose you had the power of anying to me: "Take your choice-never pray again, or die this instant:" I would choose the latter, for I have no more fear of death than I have of going out of that door, but I don't see how I could get along without the former. Now, then, if you want to debate with me what prayer is, we will go out and hire a hall for three days. "Now I believe that the Christian Endeavorers are most of them honest in their idea of what ingersoll should be and do, but I do not forget that at their last Convention in Boston one of them lett his pulpit and his wife in New one of them left his pulpit and his wife in New York State and was found in Boston sagrante delich with a woman not his wife; and before they, as a body, pray the mote out of ingersoil's eye they should not be in condition to start a

MRS. MARSCHOWSKI'S EARRINGS. The Police Say They Have the Men Who

The police say they have captured the men who on last Tuesday entered William Marschowski's tin shop, at 206 Eldridge street, and tore the earrings from Mrs. Marschowski's ears. The robbery occurred a little after 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Three hours later James Barrett was arrested while trying to pawn the earrings at Simpson's, 175 Bowery. At the Eldridge street station he said the carrings had been given him by Samuel Lawrence of 432 Fifth street. Lawrence was arrested, but in the Essex Market Court the next day he proved that he knew nothing about the robbery and was dis-

Arsken learned that Barrett and two other men

Central Office Detectives Reap, Ridmey, and Arsken learned that Barrett and two otner men had been seen leitering about Marschowski's place two days before the robbery. On Friedy night the detectives arrested John Ross, alias Harry Korth, 17 years old, of 37 First street, who has confessed since, implicating himself, Barrett, and another man. Ross is a musician, alle was remanded in Essex Market Court yesterday morning to headquarters.

According to Ross's story he, Burrell, and Harry Mansfield, 27 years old, committed the robbery. Mausfield also is a musician, and he lives in a furnished room over Marschewski's tin shop. Ross and Mansfield were formerly in the variety business, but recently they have been out of work. On last Monday Mansfield met Koss and Harrett in the street and told them that he had just seen a woman in a restaurant on Rivington street near Forsyth street place a well filled nurse behind a desk. He proposed, Ross says, that they steal the purse.

Barrett entered the restaurant and ordered a steak. The woman in charge went into a rear room to prepare it. While she was doing so Barrett found the pocketbook hidden behind the counier, Ross says, and steaked out of the restaurant with it. He met Ross and Mansfield, and all three went to Mansfield's room. The purse contained $20 and a ten-dollar check. Ross says the money was divided.

The men then parted, but met the next day. Meantime Mansfield had seen Mrs. Marschowski will have been to will be arraiged out with with the exception of the chloroforning. They didn't have time for that. Barrett is said to have held Mrs. Marchowski while Ross removed her earnings. Then the three men ran to the elevated railroad and rode to Grand street.

Since his arrest Barrett has been remanded from day to day. Mansfield was arrested yesterday, and, with Ross and Barrett, he will be arraigned in Essex Market Court this morning.

LOTOS SATURDAY NIGHT.

The "Lotos Saturday Night" was reëstabmembers were to sit down at the smoker. The members began to assemble early, but the vaude-ville entertainment that was to give variety to the night was not begun until the evening

Among the entertainers were Richard Arnold, violinist; Leopold Winkler, planist; Edward Reuling, baritone; Thomas Evans Greene, tsnor; Normand W. Fellows, William Philp, from the "His Excellency" company, John Lo Hay, ventriloguist; George Grossmith, Jr., from "The Shop Girl" company, who sang some English comedy songs, and Louis Cairns James of the "His Excellency" company, who sang "The Noisy Johnny," one of the popular concert hall songs of London just now.

Henry W. Ranger, who has provided such good fun that he has been kent in the Chairmanship of the Entertainment Committee for three years, and his associates on the committee arranged the programme for last night. The other members of the committee are Julian Rix, Dr. W. W. Walker, Chandos Fulton, J. E. Dodson, E. H. Low, D. Liebman, F. T. Murray, Harrison Gray Fiske, and Oscar Weber.

CADETS EVICTED FROM CHURCH.

They Wore Out the Carpets, and, in Words, Defiled the Sanctuary.

There is trouble in St. Paul's M. E. Church, Jersey City, resulting from the eviction of a company of cadets. The cadet corps was organized about eighteen months ago and obtained permission to use the church as a drill room. About a month ago the cadets gave an enterainment in the church, and it was understood that half of the proceeds was to go to the church treasury. On the evening of the entertainment so it is asserted, several of the cadets, while in the vestibule, made remarks which were unbecoming for utterance either inside or outside a church. The matter was reported to the trustees, who decided that the cadets must find head-quarters and a drill room somewhere else.

The parents of the boys became offended, but were informed that the trustees had concluded that, aside from the wear and tear on the carpets, the church was not a fit place to be used as a drill room. Capt. Charles H. Smellis was notified of this decision, and when the cadets went to the church a night or two ago to drill the sexton refused to admit them.

The boys say they will not disband, neither will they share with the church the profits of the entertainment, which amounted to $73. They may consolidate with the Centenary M. E. Church Cadets or become affiliated with the Grace P. E. Church. that half of the proceeds was to go to the church

The corridors and parlors were luxuriously fitted up with couches and cozey corner seats. Vale blue and Harvard crimson and Princeton orange and black vard crimson and Princeton orange and thick were conspicuous everywhere. The chapel was thronged with the students and their guests when the reception committee entered. They were Miss Helen Stanford, Mrs. Kendrick, Miss Louise Hooker, Miss Louise Hell Hart, and Miss Olga Waite. Miss Louise Yan Anden, President of the society, followed with Mr. Joseph O'Connor, who addressed the society on "Literary Style."

After the address a reception and promerade concert followed. Each class had its own parlor, The Senior parlor was most popular, and the Guest Hook had many names added to it. At 10 o'clock supper was served in the big dining room, which was hung in rose and gray drapery, and at 12 o'clock the Glee Club sangits good-night song.

CHIEF CONLIN ON RIOTS. HIS ADPOCACY OF THE USE OF

The New Head of the Police Department's Views as Shown by His Examination for Promotion-He Would Treat Riot-ous Assemblages in a Summary Fashion.

The details of the examination which Acting Chief of Police Coulin underwent on Friday, before his permanent appointment as Chief, were made public yesterday. Three of his anawers to questions give the new Chief's ideas on riot duty, and when these became known yesterday they excited considerable comment. The first question was:

"Assuming that you were Chief of Police under an act consolidating New York and Brooklyn, how would you form and march to Brooklyn, in case of a strike in that city, 1,000 reserves from this city ?" To this the Chief replied:

"I would form my reserves in City Hall Park and forming the battalion, march to the Brooklyn Bridge, take cars to Brooklyn, and then march to the scene of the trouble." The second question was:

"Assuming a general strike at the Grand Central Depot and extending over the tracks of the New York Central Railroad to the city's limit, what would be your first disposition of your police force? What would be your subse quent disposition in case you were successful in controlling the strikers at Forty-second street, but more serious trouble should break out in the vicinity of the Harlem Bridge?"

To this he replied: "I would place an Inspector at the Grand Central Depot with a sufficient force to cover to 116th street; another Inspector with a force to cover to the Harlem River, and a third above the Harlem River with a force divided into two parts, each commanded by a Captain, one covering the Harlem River tracks and the other the tracks west to Yonkers." The third question was:

'Assuming at the same time a general street car strike throughout the city, making it neces-

Assuming at the same time a general steet car strike throughout the city, making it necessary to call out the National Guard, what disposition of the various regiments of the First Brigade would you advise, assuming the centres of the strike to be at the Broadway power house. Broadway and Houston street; the Third avenue power house, Bowery and Bayard street, and the power house at Sixth avenue and Fifteth street?"

The answer was:

"I would advise the employment of five regiments in the main part of the city and one battalion in Harlem, the largest regiment to be at Bayard street and the Bowery, a piece of artillery at Fiftieth street and Sixth avenue; another piece at Eleventh street and Second avenue; the other pieces to be held in reserve with the troops at Houston street and Broadway, only grape and canister to be used."

Some criticism having been made on the Chief's answer as to the use of grape and canister, he made this statement last evening: "I don't wish to be misunderstood. I do not mean that I would use grape and canister on inoffensive strikers. The question was a military one, and I answered it in a military way. That is all there is to it."

The other is right. With strikes the police Board, said in regard to this matter:

"The Chief's a right.

Theodore Reserveit, President of the Police Board, said in regard to this matter:

The Chief is right. With strikes the police have nothing to do, except to see that order is preserved. We shall guard zealously the rights of the strikers as well as those of the employers. When riot is menaced it is different. A mobtakes its own chances. Order will be kept at whatever cost. If it comes to shooting, we shall shoot to hit—no blank cartridges or firing over heads. That was what the Chief meant, and what the Board means, too. Nebody can misunderstand it."

DIED OF STARVATION.

A Jury Pinds that Gilbert Eveleth's Death Was Due to the Neglect of His Brother. JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 7. - The Coroner's jury in the case of the death of Gilbert Eveleth, who was found dead in his home in Busti, where for many years he had lived alone, returned a verdict this afternoon. The jury finds that Eveleth's death was caused by gross neglect and starvation, brought about by the negligence starvation, brought about by the negligence of Henry Eveleth, a brother, to whom means had been furnished by those in charge of the Eveleth estate to provide for Gilbert, who was mentally unfit to take care of himself. After the death of the boy's father Gilbert was removed by his brother from a comfortable home to an old shanty in the woods and left to live alone. The jury, in making an investigation, found nothing in the place to cat, except a small bowl of corn meal and a head of cabbage.

How Wilson Regained His Runnway Daughter.

Marian Wilson, 17 years old, of Jersey City, ran away from home three weeks ago and went to live with her uncle, Peter King, in Clifton, S. I. Her father, John W. Wilson, went to Stapleton yesterday and complained to the police that his daughter was detained at Clifton and was in bad company and running about at and was in sad company and running about at night.

At his request a policeman accompanied him to Clifton. King refused to let them take the girl, and ordered the father and policeman to leave. Wilson and the policeman persisted, and Wilson undertook to take the girl by force. King seized an axe and started to attack the girl's father, when the policeman placed himself between the two meb, and, drawing a revolver, ordered king to desist. After that King consented to allow the girl to leave with her father.

A Canalbont Sinks at a Hoboken Dock. The canalboat H. R. Brayton, laden with 200 tons of scrap iron, while on her way to Pough-keepsie in tow of the tug Pocahontas yesterday morning, sprang a leak and was towed into the Wilson Steamship Company's docks at the foot of Sixth street. Hoboken, where it sank. Capt. William J. Meehan and Deck Hand Stephen Embree of the Braxton applied at the Hoboken Police Hendquarters last night for lodging, and reported the loss of the boat.
